News story #1      Douglas Garland assaulted in jail (0:13)

Setting the Scene

Last week, Douglas Garland was found guilty of murder. Three people, a couple and their five-year-old grandson, went missing in 2014. The courts ruled that it was Garland who murdered them. Garland was the man's former business partner, and their relationship had gone bad years earlier. It was a very sad and shocking story for the people of Calgary. The story was in the news for years: when the family went missing, when Garland was accused, and when Garland's murder trial took place. In Canada, the charge for this kind of murder is a life sentence, which means 25 years in prison for each murder that was committed. It seems that Douglas Garland will spend the rest of his life in jail.

Pre-listening Questions

What are some reasons that people go to prison?

Do you think a 25-year prison sentence is fair for the crime of murder?

How is murder punished in your home country?

Vocabulary

News story #3    Mumps outbreak in southern Alberta (2:51)

Setting the Scene

Mumps are a contagious viral disease. There is a vaccination for the disease, which is usually administered in two doses: one when a child is about one year old, and one when a child is about five years old. If a person has had the mumps vaccination, they are far less likely to get the disease. If a person catches mumps, it can cause a lot of discomfort, and even deafness. The disease can also cause sterility in adult males. This means they cannot have babies. People in southern Alberta, especially in schools and hospitals, are being told to look out for signs of the disease.

Pre-listening Questions

What do you usually do when you get sick?

How do you prevent diseases from spreading?

Where do you go when you have health questions? The doctor? The Internet? Somewhere else?

Transcripts of Weekly news stories

	FEBRUARY WEEKLY NEWS STORIES	TIME
Introduction	Hi. I'm Shannon Scott and this is learning English with the CBC for February 27th, with stories that made news over the past week.	0:00
Story 1	Four inmates are facing charges of aggravated assault in the jail beating of Douglas Garland. The attack happened at the Calgary Remand Centre on Feb. 17 th , just hours after Garland was sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for 75 years for the murders of 3 people. Garland was taken to hospitals with injuries to his face and body. He was sent back to the Remand Centre over the weekend. He's been at the centre since his arrest in 2014. He stays in what's called "Unit 3", an area for inmates facing serious charges who need some level of protection. That area is where he was attacked. Garland has been found guilty of three counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of 5-year-old Nathan O'Brien and his grandparents Alvin and Kathy Liknes.	0:13
Story 2	13 members of the Calgary Police Service are filing bullying and harassment complaints with Chief Roger Chaffin. The group says the Service does not provide a safe work environment One of the complainants is Constable Jen Magnus. She is a 14-year member of the force who publicly offered her resignation at a Calgary Police Commission meeting in January to draw attention to the issues. She says she suffered from continued bullying and sexual harassment. She also says she feared revenge for speaking out. Magnus says the police service needs to start holding people accountable. She and her lawyer met recently with the police chief and say he has promised to investigate complaints with an internal investigator. Chief Roger Chaffin says he welcomes the complaints and hopes the investigation helps to change the culture at CPS.	1:31
Story 3	Health Officials in southern Alberta are warning about an outbreak of the mumps, and say people should be on the lookout for symptoms. There have been at least 9 confirmed cases in southern Alberta. The outbreak started in Medicine Hat when 7 members of the town's Western Hockey League team came down with the virus. It's been 10 years since the province had a mumps outbreak. The last one in 2007 was also in southern Alberta. Mumps is a viral infection spread through infected saliva. There is a vaccine to protect against it that is usually given to young children. Symptoms of mumps include fever, headache, pain while chewing or swallowing, weakness and fatigue.	2:51
